

Evening News

32p

WIN a night of speedway nostalgia with Ove Fundin

Page 54

pages of property

CLEAN UP: missing tiles on the roof of the garage are evidence of the stand-off that took place.

Photo: SONYA BROWN

MISSING: 11-year-old Bunmi Shagaya. Photo: PA

RIOT POLICE IN GARAGE SIEGE

FIREFIGHTERS were forced to fight a garage blaze under cover of police riot shields after a man held a three-hour siege on its roof.

The man hurled tiles at emergency crews as they battled to put out two fires and end the stand-off at the Jet garage on Aylsham Road, Norwich.

A giant clean-up operation was under way at the

by CAROLINE JENKINSON

garage today, and the damage bill is expected to be between £5,000 and £7,000.

A computer terminal melted in the heat of a fire started in the shop, stock was ruined through water damage, the station signs were smashed and most of the roof will have to be replaced.

Petrol station manager Mark Timmins said: "It would have been much cheaper if he'd just broken in, grabbed some stock and run away.

"Something like this costs more than any smash and grab job." The 34-year-old man, who was said by witnesses to have a Scouse accent, was spotted on the roof by a member of the public at around 1.45am today. Police officers were first on the scene followed by

► Turn to Page 6

French divers find Bunmi

FRENCH police searching for missing 11-year-old British schoolgirl Bunmi Shagaya today lifted a body from the lake where she disappeared.

Four police divers placed the body, which was partly submerged at the lake near Dieppe, on a white stretcher and carried it to the sandy shoreline where Bunmi, from Lambeth, south London, was last seen alive on Monday.

It came after a man, was seen pointing at an object in the lake.

More than 13 police vehicles rushed to the scene.

The body is yet to be formally identified. It was found in the cordoned-off paddling pool area of the lake where the youngster had been playing.

Special Summer Offers at...
GRANT STREET BEDS
 55 Grant Street (Off Dereham Road) Norwich. Telephone 01603 617988
 Mattresses • Headboards • Metal Frames • Pine Beds • Pocket Sprung Beds • Dunlopillo